On May 18th of this year, the thematic exhibition "Dangerous Depth," organized in cooperation with the Latvian Swimming Federation and the Fire Safety and Civil Defense College, was opened at the museum.

With the summer season commencing, one of the pressing concerns for State Fire and Rescue Service is public safety, particularly that of children, in water. High risks arise due to people's irresponsible attitude and lack of skills. To address these issues, the museum is hosting the exhibition "Dangerous Depth: Water Safety and the History of Life-Saving Equipment." The exhibition includes informative materials on dangerous situations and recommendations for safe swimming.

Additionally, the exhibition showcases items that reflect lifeguard training and rescue equipment used over the past 30 years in Latvia.

The exhibition will be available for viewing until the end of the year.
